

Atlanta Kookaburras partner with Coopers Brewery of South Australia.

PRESS RELEASE - 11/20/2017

The Atlanta Kookaburras Australian Rules Football Club are pleased to announce a partnership with Coopers Brewery of South Australia to be their prime brand ambassador in the Atlanta Georgia region.

The Atlanta Kookaburras were first formed in 1998 in the back lots of Dobbins Air Force Base in Marietta, GA but have since grown to be the #1 authentic Australian Football Club in Atlanta introducing Australian Rules Football to many Georgia regions through cultural events, social sports development and health and fitness programs.

Coopers Brewery has been a sponsor of Australian Rules Football in the USA since 2003 and were an integral part of the 2004 USAFL National Championships, held in Cumming GA. The success of that event has led to an annual tournament that is now the biggest Australian Rules Football event in the world.

Coopers Brewery was founded in 1862 in the young colony of South Australia. A modest man, named Thomas Cooper, began making tonic for his ailing wife. Six generations later it is now the oldest and most authentic Australian beer of its kind. Like all good things in life, the beers of Coopers Brewery are pure and simple pleasures. Using four simple ingredients; malt, hops, water and yeast, artfully combined into ales, stouts and lagers you can sense the history in every taste, from Australia's oldest family owned and operated brewery.

The Atlanta Kookaburras Australian Rules Football Club wish to sincerely thank Coopers Brewery for their continued support of Australian Rules Football and their commitment to bringing genuine Aussie Beer and true Australian culture to the people of the USA.
